On 11 September 2012, iCloud's email service was fluctuating or unavailable, prevented access via email client software and the iCloud Web site.

Apple did not explain the reasons of this outage and said only 1.1% of users was affected. iCloud has 150 millions user, so 1.1% of users of this service is about 1,650,000 people...

The service was fully restored on the morning of 13 September 2012. Notice than if messages are deferred for more than 24 hours, they may bounce back to their senders.
