

COVID-19

BEST ↘

REVIEWS ↘

NEWS ↘

HOW TO ↘

FINANCE ↘

HEALTH ↘

CARS ↘

DEALS ↘

5G

JOIN / SIGN IN

Apple's App Store, iTunes back online after outages

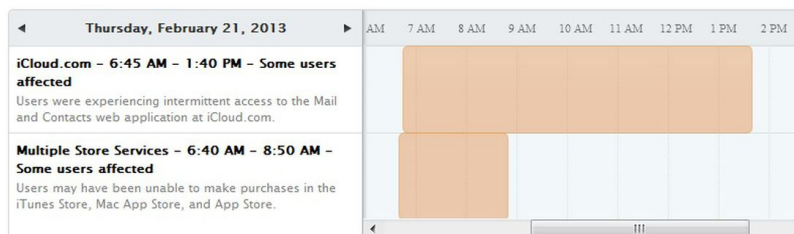

The company's online services all seem to be back in business now after they were hit by outages yesterday.

Lance Whitney

Feb. 22, 2013 6:22 a.m. PT

Apple's online services were down for many users yesterday.

Screenshot by CNET

Apple users unable to access the App Store or iTunes yesterday should find those sites alive and well today.

The App Store, iTunes, iCloud, and the Mac App Store were inaccessible to many people throughout yesterday, according to 9to5Mac.

Following a series of user complaints via Twitter, Apple eventually acknowledged the problem on its system status page, which indicated outages at various times for its online stores, Mail and Contacts via iCloud, and the Calendar app across different devices.

The status showed the iCloud outage ending at 1:40 p.m. PT. But some people continued to bump into issues even beyond that point, 9to5Mac added.

Today, Apple's status page shows all of its online sites and services up and running again. The page doesn't offer any details as to the cause of the outage.

CNET contacted Apple for comment and will update the story if the company responds.

COMMENTS

Software | Internet | iTunes | Apple
Tech Industry

English | Español

MORE FROM CNET

Upgrade to Windows 10 for free right now

The 34 best games on Nintendo Switch

The best Wi-Fi routers of 2020

Windows 10 tips and tricks

The best VPN service for 2020

ABOUT

About CNET

Newsletter

Sitemap

Careers

Help Center

Licensing

POLICIES

Privacy Policy

Terms of Use

Mobile User Agreement

Ad Choice

CA Privacy/Info We Collect

CA Do Not Sell My Info

GET THE CNET APP

App Store | Google Play

FOLLOW

© CBS Interactive Inc. All Rights Reserved.