Apple's Safari browser struggled to keep up with its demanding public this morning, after a number of users reported crashes and service outages.

The crash is reported to have been caused by a bug with the browser's 'auto suggest' feature and has seemingly affected iPhone and iPad users worldwide.

A work around fix was suggested by many users on Twitter and Apple has now confirmed that the problem has been solved.

The crash is reported to have been caused by a bug with Safari's 'auto suggest' feature and has seemingly affected iPhone and iPad users worldwide. A fix has been suggested by many users on Twitter while Apple is said to be working on a more permanent solution. The browser's icon is pictured

The auto suggest feature works by attempting to predict what the user is searching for and offering a list of possible suggestions.

Users raised the issue on the Twitter this morning, with many using the hashtag #Safaricrash to report the browser crashing on multiple devices.

One user wrote: 'Safari is crashing on all of my devices since this morning! Hurry up Apple.'

Another exclaimed: 'Problems with Safari on Mac and iOS. Sort it out soon guys.'

In a move that could be seen as cynical, rival Google seemingly used the news to push its own Chrome browser.

The firm's UK Twitter handle tweeted: 'Trying to search for stuff this morning? Just putting it out there...' adding a link to its own browser.

MailOnline contacted Apple for comment, with the company since confirming that the issue has been resolved.

HOW TO FIX SAFARI CRASH

Users experiencing issues with Apple's browser were advised to disable the browser's suggestions.

Go to: Settings > Safari > Safari Suggestions.

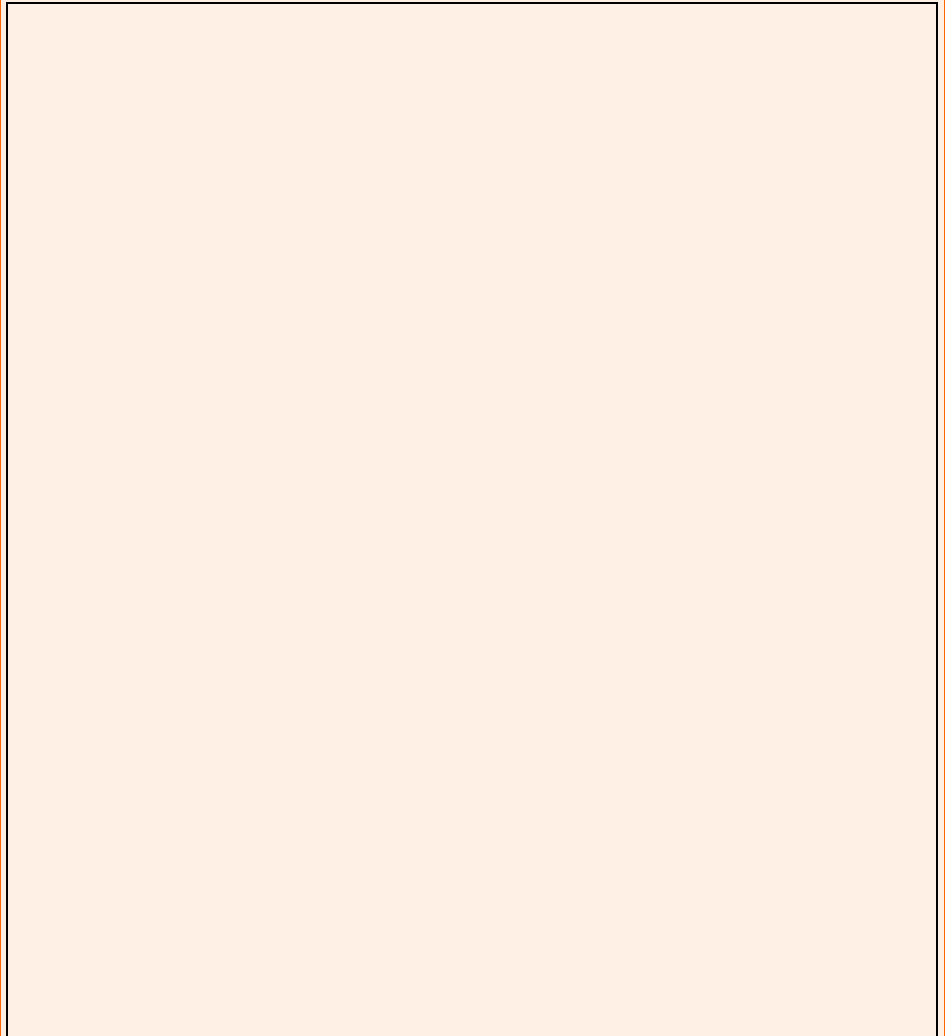

Apple has not yet officially revealed what is causing the issue, but a Reddit user claiming to be an Apple employee has said the firm is looking into the issue.

However, the firm has confirmed that the issue is resolved.

If users are continuing to experience problems, clearing their browser's cache should rectify things.

This can be done by going to Settings, tapping on Safari, selecting Advanced and opening Website Data.

Click Remove All Website Data. This will potentially clear passwords and other stored information, however.

iPhone users experiencing issue with the Safari browser have been advised to turn off Safari suggestions in the phone's settings. Pictured is the menu, which can be accessed by going into Settings > Safari

Today's browser problems follow in the wake of a prank site which wreaked havoc on iPhones by crashing the browser.

Earlier this week, MailOnline reported the website www.crashsafari.com crashes the iPhone's default browser by releasing thousands of characters that overload its memory, overheating the phone until it down completely.

It has been posted with a URL shortener to try to trick people into opening it.

The page includes a header title and a small piece of JavaScript, which calls the HTML5 History API thousands of times in a loop that causes Safari to freeze.

The issue is reportedly affecting both iPhone and iPad users. Pictured is the iPhone 6 (left) and iPad Air (right)

Apple recently announced its record profits for the last financial quarter. The US tech giant posted profits of $18.4 billion (£12.8 billion) for the three-month period ending 26 December.

However, the firm also confirmed speculation that its iPhone sales are slowing.

It sold 74.8 million iPhones in the first full quarter of sales of the iPhone 6S and 6S Plus.

The company continued that revenue could fall at least 8.6 per cent during the January to March quarter, compared with a year earlier.

The 0.4 percent growth in shipments was the lowest since the product was launched in 2007.

While revenue in Greater China rose 14 per cent in the quarter, Apple is beginning to see a shift in the economy, particularly in Hong Kong, Apple chief financial officer Luca Maestri told Reuters in an interview.

GADGET REVIEWS

► iPad Pro review:

Apple takes the tablet to new heights (at a price)

Apple's new iPad is blazingly fast, gorgeous to look at, and quite simply the best tablet out there - and for a lot of people, probably the best computer out there.

► The small smart display with big potential: Google Home Hub review

Google is late to the game with its Home Hub, but the low price and AI features make it a great choice for controlling your home, showing pictures and even helping run your life.

► 'Good enough for most people': iPhone XR review

On one hand, the XR lacks the high-resolution screen and dual-lens camera on the XS, but it is $250 cheaper and still gets most of the other cutting-edge features found on the more expensive model.

► The Pixel 3 outsmarts the iPhone (IF you trust Google with all your information)

AI seems to permeate every part of its software, from the ability to answer calls for you to being able to almost perfectly predict your morning commute.

► Bigger and better in every way: Apple's XS really does take the iPhone to the Max

Apple's new iPhone XS and XS Max go on sale on Friday - and the biggest handset Apple has ever made is also its best (and possibly unsurprisingly, its most expensive).

► The $250 beauty device that works like 'Photoshop for your face'

Israeli beauty-tech firm Pollogen has launched its Geneo Personal device, which stimulates oxygen from beneath the skin's surface to give you a clearer, fresher face within minutes.

► iOS 12 review: The update that really will improve your iPhone

Rather than cram in a plethora of new features, Apple's latest update is about boosting stability, with improvements in everything from FaceID and battery ...and battery life.

► Naim Atom: The hifi that will change the way you listen to music

It's eye-wateringly expensive at $2,999, but Naim's Uniti Atom is a revelation, an integrated amplifier that makes it easy to stream music at a quality you've probably never heard before.

► The $1,000 wireless speaker that really IS worth the price: Naim Mu-so Qb review

Naim's incredible Mu-So Qb takes you back to the good old days - where the music captivates and enthralls, rather than simply being something in the background.

► The hi-tech $2,000 spin bike that really could change your life

Peloton's hi-tech bike lets you stream live and on demand rides to your home - and it's one of the best examples of fitness technology out there - at a price.

► The best all in one wireless speaker you'll ever hear: Naim Mu-so review

It might not be a name familiar to the US market, but Naim is a legendary British brand hoping to make a splash with the American launch of its $1499 Mu:So speaker.
