

Games

PlayStation Network down for many — Sony is aware of the problem

JEFF GRUBB @JEFFGRUBB FEBRUARY 1, 2015 4:15 PM

You may have issues getting online with your PS4 today.

Hundreds of gamers on social media are complaining about PlayStation Network.

Sony's online service is having issues on this Super Bowl Sunday. Many people on Twitter and other networks are noticing that they cannot sign into PSN. This is preventing them from playing online multiplayer games as well as many single-player games that require a connection to a third-party server.

We’ve asked Sony for more details, and we’ll update this story with any new details. The PSN Status website claims the online service is up and running, but it is often slow to update.

The company’s support account on Twitter did confirm that it is aware of some issues, and it said it is investigating.

AoSFreak @AoSFreak · Feb 2, 2015

@AskPlayStation why can psn be fully functional for at least 4 month without any kind of problems. 🤔🤔

Ask PlayStation @AskPlayStation

@AoSFreak We are currently investigating. Please try again later.

12:21 AM · Feb 2, 2015

See Ask PlayStation’s other Tweets

This isn’t the first time Sony has had issues with PSN. On Christmas, the network went offline for nearly five straight days as the result of a cyberattack. As a response to that, Sony gave fans a 10-percent-off coupon for its game store as well as five free days of the premium PlayStation Plus subscription program.

You May Like

Smartfeed

Read This Before You Renew Amazon Prime Again

Sponsored: Wikibuy

Man Who Predicted Trump's Win Makes Another Prediction

Sponsored: betterlyfe.news

[Pics] New Renderings Show What Historical Figures Would Actually Look Like In Real Life

Sponsored: Collider

[Photos] She Was A Legendary Actress - Now She Works 9 To 5

Sponsored: Collider

[Photos] 35 People That Forgot to Check The Background Before Taking Photo

Sponsored: Penguin M.D.

Boost your productivity with these 9 hot deals for...

You can score a lifetime of cloud backup for under $50...

This Microsoft Excel training bundle is just $34 right now

store

