Yahoo Mail is back online after 11 Days of outage

By Abhishek Kumar Jha - December 2, 2014

After 11 days of wait finally Yahoo mail users can login into there Account

Yahoo Mail service is back online after massive outage for 11 days due to a undersea cable cut which caused the service to go slow and inaccessible for many users around the globe.

The outage which ended earlier today after 11 days of long wait which would have caused several of its users to switch to Google's Gmail, Microsoft's Outlook or other services while many others users who were locked down from accessing Yahoo! Mail to check important mails were seen venting out their frustration on social media sites like Twitter, few of the tweets are given below :

SERIOUSLY? ANOTHER #YAHOOMAIL ISSUE? #YAHOOMAILDOWN YAHOO MAIL

— JOHN LEE (@JOHNLEESANDIEGO) NOVEMBER 28, 2014

"IF YAHOO WAS #RBS THEY'D BE FINED £56M FOR LOCKING US OUT OF OUR ACCOUNTS. HOW AM I EXPECTED TO RUN MY BUSINESS WITH #YAHOOMAILDOWN?

— JAMIE (@JAMIEJABBS) NOVEMBER 28, 2014

@YAHOO CARE YOU #YAHOOMAILDOWN AGAIN OR HAVING PROBLOME WHAT'S WRONG NOW MINE SEEMS VERY SLOW AND MESSAGE FAIL TO GO?

The company spokesman told the Inquirer that "The underwater fiber cable has been repaired and Yahoo Mail performance has returned to normal levels." The undersea cable which Yahoo said was cut by a third party while fixing a separate cable caused the outage, however Yahoo's Engineering team tried to reroute the email traffic but that did not helped much.

Anyways Yahoo Mail is up now and 11 days older emails can still stand useful.
